ELKS MAKING PREPARATIONS

WILL HOLD MEMORIAL

Distinguished Visitor To Speak At Public Services.—Holds Important Post In Philadelphia.

Preparations are being made this week by Maryville Lodge No. 760, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, for a formal reception of Charles. H. Grakelow of Philadelphia, Pa., grand exalted ruler of the Elks, who will be here Sunday, December 12.

Grand Exalted Ruler Grakelow was elected unanimously by the grand lodge at its Chicago meeting. His nomination by W. Freeland Kendricks, present Mayor of Philadelphia, was one of the most popular ever made in the grand lodge.

Accompanying the grand exalted ruler on his visit here will be Frank W. Buhler, formerly of Maryville, now managing director of the powerful Stanley Company of America, motion picture theater corporation. Mr. Buhler is a member of the Philadelphia Elks lodge. While here he will visit his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Buhler, his brother, Charles Buhler, and two sisters, Mrs. A. J. Bluel and Mrs. Maggie Lahr.

Arrive Sunday Morning.

Mr. Grakelow and Mr. Buhler will arrive in Maryville Sunday morning from Aurora, Ill., on the Burlington. They will be here all day, leaving that night for St. Louis on the Wabash.

Mr. Grakelow will conduct the annual memorial services at the Elks Club Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. These service are open to the public. Mr. Grakelow will give the memorial address. The full program will be announced later.

A dinner in honor of the grand exalted ruler will be given at the Elks Club Sunday evening at 6:15. All members of the Elks are invited to attend. A number of Elks from Kirksville, Moberly, Creston and a few other towns will be present at the dinner.

Back in 1921 Maryville had the honor of entertaining this distinguished guest, when the building committee of Philadelphia Lodge, of which Frank Buhler was chairman, paid a brief visit to the local lodge.

Immediately following Grand Exalted Ruler Grakelow's election in July, Mr. Buhler exacted from the Elks ruler a promise to visit Maryville. Grakelow and his official party of Grand Lodge officers will come to Maryville direct from Aurora, Ill., arriving here at 4.05 a. m. Sunday and leaving for Philadelphia that same evening at 11:15 o'clock.

Has Record Of Progress.

Having made a wonderful record in Philadelphia Lodge No. 2, of which he was the exalted ruler for more than seven years, the grand exalted ruler is trying this year to lead the national organization into a similar record. Under his direction, the Quaker City Lodge increased seven-fold in membership and built the finest Elks Temple in the entire order.

"Know Your Order Better" is the slogan which the grand exalted ruler adopted for this year. He believes in the Elks Lodge as one of the best means for promoting Americanism and patriotism, as well as the welfare of the local community. By applying these principles to its own affairs and the affairs of its locality, Grand Exalted Ruler Grakelow believes each Elks Lodge will become of great importance in its civic life. The lodge will benefit, he believes, by attracting to its fold all the worthwhile citizens of its town. Each Lodge member is urged to invite those of his friends who are not Elks to join him in the local lodge.

The Eld leader is also a leader in community activities in Philadelphia, where he is a member of Mayor Kendrick's cabinet as director of public welfare. This department includes a bureau of personal assistance, which cares largely for poor families and foundlings of the city; a bureau of legal aid, where the legal troubles of the poor are administered free of charge to them, and equitably to all concerned; the bureau of charities and correction and the bureau of recreation.

Directs City's Recreation.

In the latter bureau is found all of the recreation centers of the city, a large city bathing beach in League Island Park, and a still larger river beach on the upper part of the Delaware Riv

HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Here are Charles H. Grakelow, grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, who will pay a visit to the local lodge, December 12, and, below, Frank W. Buhler, formerly of Maryville, who is responsible for the visit. Mr. Grakelow is director of public welfare in Philadelphia, Pa., where Mr. Buhler also lives.

COUNTY FREE FROM DISEASE

DR. C. P. FRYER "WARNS AGAINST" CHRISTMAS.

VISITING SPREADS ILLS

Nodaway County has very few contagious diseases now, and has been unusually fortunate this fall, in not having an epidemic, Dr. C. P. Fryer, county health physician declared today, "but just wait until Christmas," the physician warned, "then everyone will go visiting and catch some disease."

"The holidays and the following weeks are bad times for illnesses," Dr. Fryer said.

"It is hard for people to realize that when their children are a little indisposed that they may be contracting a contagious disease. The youngsters are taken visiting and then when they break out with some disease, everyone where they are visiting is exposed.

Don't eat too many sweet foods.

Avoid contact with persons not feeling well.

Wear proper clothing.

Sleep in sufficiently ventilated room.

"People get the idea that the vegetables they eat must be seasonable. That's all wrong. The thing to consider is the amount of vitamins in foods, such as lettuce, celery and salads with oil dressings. Oils contain vitamins, canned vegetables, such as beans and beets, all should be served frequently. These foods should be served frequently and children, especially, should not be served fried meats.

Often times the vitamins are destroyed in the cooking of vegetables, Dr. Fryer explained. In the old days cabbage was cooked and cooked and COOKED, and all of the food value was left in the pot and often times this liquor was not used. Paper would have been just as nutritious, could it be digested, as this cabbege with all the nutriment cooked out of it.

Miss Nellie Clayton of Pickering returned home Saturday from a three months' visit with relatives and friends in Des Moines and VanMeter, Ia.

Mrs Ernest C. Gooden who lives near Parnell, spent the day here with Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Gooden.

NEW COUNCIL MEETS TODAY

LEAGUE BODY HAS "SETTLING DOWN" SESSION.

MAY LAST TEN DAYS

First Work Will Be Disposed of Business Left From Last League Group Meeting in September.

Geneva, Dec. 6.—After a public session of unusual brevity, the opening session of the council of the League of Nations today adjourned until Tuesday afternoon to give the "big three" of the council time to discuss German disarmament.

Aristrides Briand of France, Austen Chamberlain of England, and Gustav Stresemann of Germany, all foreign ministers, will dominate the conference, which will take up an agenda embracing some thirty questions.

A delegation of Chinese Kuomintang to Europe has arrived and sent a memorandum to the league secretariat declaring the canton government considers all unequal treaties abolished because they were negotiated by the North China government, which the delegation insists, no longer represents the Chinese people. The delegation insists that the Canton government alone is competent to begin negotiations for new treaties, and said it had arranged to represent both the Canton and Peking governments before the council.

Geneva, Dec. 6.—The newly reorganized and enlarged council of the League of Nations met here today for the first "settling down" session.

Although the new council, following the election of new members at the September assembly, held one or two perfunctory, routine sessions, before adjourning, no opportunity was given for the new body to get together and adjust itself on its newly created basis.

The council as compared today now consists of the following members: permanents, England, France, Germany, Italy and Japan; non-permanents, Columbia, Chile, San Salvador, China, Holland, Poland, Roumania, Czecho-Slovakia and Belgium.

The bulk of these were represented today by their foreign ministers; virtually only the far-away members such as China and the Latin American countries being obliged to be represented merely by ministers and ambassadors permanently residing in Europe.

Although the council has before it an unusually important agenda, embracing some thirty items of international affairs, no secret was made of the fact that the real importance of the session lies, not in the League business that may be transacted, but in the private conversations that will take place between Briand, Stresemann, Chamberlain, Vandervele, Benes and other moreign ministers of the Locarno group.

League circles are now forced to admit, as most of the European chancellories freely admit, that the greatest value of the League and especially of the Council sessions is the opportunity given for the foreign ministers of the leading countries to meet in little out of the way eating places such as at Thoiry, or in the private rooms at the hotels for the transaction of a mass of international political problems and questions, with which the League has nothing to do.

However, the League is perfectly happy to act as a screen or camouflage for this secret "open" diplomacy, or "open" secret diplomacy as long as it all furthers the general pacification and reconstruction of Europe and the world generally.

The new council, with its full fourteen members, will first of all be called upon to dispose of a mass of business which should have been handled last September before adjournment.

This is the preliminary action for carrying out all of the resolutions adopted by the last assembly. Ordinarily, following the adjournment of the assembly, the council continues in session for several days in order to get this work under way.

D. D. Heflin of Orrsburg, was in Parnell today.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Johnson and daughter, Gracie, and Mrs. Mamie Womack and son, Maurice, motored to Fillmore yesterday where they were guests for the day of Mrs. Johnson's sister, Mrs. J. W. Carr, and family.

First Taste of Real Winter Is Predicted

In St. Louis, Mercury Drops From 36 to 25 and Will Continue to Decline—Snow Is Likely.

St. Louis, Dec. 6.—With temperatures in the twenties throughout the district and the mercury tobogganing rapidly, residents of southern Illinois and Missouri are scheduled to get their first taste of real winter tonight, the weather bureau predicted today.

The thermometer swung down to 25 at St. Louis this morning, from yesterday's high of 36. A further drop is expected. Heavy clouds will bring snow before night, which will likely continue tomorrow, the government forecaster predicted.

NO BASIS FOR "WAR SCARE"

"FOOLISH" REPORT TO BLAME, NAVY OFFICERS SAY.

"YELLOW PERIL" SEEN

U. S., However, Paid No Attention to "Danger" Fall-Doheny Defense Seeks to Bring Out.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The 1921 "war scare," presented so vigorously by the defense in the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy trial, is understood to rest solely upon what brother officials of Admiral Gleaves today privately termed a "foolish report" from him on the Japanese situation.

It was indicated his report dealt either with projects for Japanese fortification of islands in the Pacific or merely with a Japanese "war game," maneuvers such as every big fleet holds annually.

Admiral Robison, Fall-Doheny witness, who has skirted the "war scare" in his testimony is known in the service as an officer strongly imbued with the "yellow peril" idea. However, the service facts stand out that no war preparations were being made by the Navy in 1921.

There was no excitement among high officers. Gleaves' communication caused no rush of building; no storing of supplies to meet a Japanese onslaught in the Pacific.

Holding of Parley Now Rests on Peru

Chile And Bolivia Both Have Agreed To Hold Conference In Washington On Tacna-Arica Question.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Whether Chile, Peru and Bolivia will meet around a conference table here to discuss Secretary of State Kellogg's proposal that Chile and Peru cede their rights in Tacna-Arica to Boliva, now depends upon Peru.

The State Department late last night announced that Chile had agreed to Kellogg's proposal to "arbitrate for a settlement." Bolivia accepted last week.

Chillicothe Gets Long Sought Court; Has No One to Try

Chillicothe, Mo., Dec. 6.—After thirty-nine years, Chillicothe today was honored by a federal court session—with no one to try.

Equipped with a handsome building and a large courtroom the city has waited for nearly two score years for its initial session of court. But no session was ever held.

Recently it was decided to enforce the law requiring that a session of court be held in each federal district in the state. So the courtroom was swept, dusted and aired. Chairs and tables were arranged and the flag was hoisted over the building.

Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis arrived today for the session, which was of only a few minutes duration. After the adjournment the judge and other court officers were entertained at a dinner by leading citizens and attorneys.

It was a big day for Chillicothe but a total failure as court session.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wells and son, Harry Duncan, left Sunday for Washington, Kan., where they will spend the holidays with relatives of Mrs. Wells.

CONGRESS' 1ST SESSION BRIEF

BOTH HOUSES ASSEMBLE, THEN ADJOURN.

NEW MEMBERS SWORN

Taxation, Prohibition, Radio, Farm Relief and Presidential Aspirations Agitated Beneath Surface.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Caught in a bewildering blizzard of politics and legislation, the 69th Congress ushered in its final three months session here today with accustomed ceremonies.

Flurries of perplexing questions of taxation, prohibition, radio, farm relief policies and presidential aspirations swept about the Capitol like yesterday's sleet and snow.

Vice-President Charles G. Dawes and Speaker Nick Longworth summoned both houses to business when the clock struck noon. The formal function of bringing the national legislature into session in accordance with the rules of the Constitution was followed out before brilliant galleries.

New Senators Sworn In.

After the chaplain's prayer in the Senate, three new senators were sworn in by the Vice-President. David I. Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, was escorted to the rostrum by Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts; Arthur R. Gould, Republican, Maine, was presented by Senator Hale, Republican, Maine; and Harry B. Hawes, Democrat, Missouri, was introduced by Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas. These three took the oath for the first time.

Then Senator Curtis, Republican floor leader, presented the first official business. His resolutions, informing the House and President Coolidge that Congress "is now in session and ready to transact business," were adopted by unanimous consent and then adjournment was taken out of respect to the late Senators Fernald, Republican, Maine, and Cummins, Republican, Iowa, who died during the summer recess.

House Also Adjourns.

Those sworn in in the House included Representatives Harry L. Ingiebright and Richard J. Welch, California; Frederick W. Dallinger, Massachusetts; and John J. Cochran, Missouri.

Adjournment there was likewise taken out of respect to members who died during the recess, after resolutions similar to those passed in the Senate were adopted by acclamation.

Fine ladies with lorgnettes; business men from over the country; silk hatted diplomats; wounded veterans from hospitals and glad-hand government officials and politicians peered down into the wells of the Senate and the House of Representatives when the stroke of noon summoned the national legislators to organize for the work at hand.

Vice-President Dawes in the Senate and Speaker Longworth in the House immediately called for order and introduced the chaplains for prayer.

The solemn ritual of organization was the same that has opened previous congresses since the foundation of the republic but it bore an excited interest to the spectators and participants alike. Senators were dressed in their frock coats and high collars. They stood at their desks in the semicircular chamber with bowed heads as the chaplain prayed.

House Less Solemn.

The scene in the House was more jubilant. There the 435 members acted like classmates returning from the summer vacation and few of the members paid much attention to the routine business transacted upon the same formula as provided in the Senate. The congressmen buzzed in little groups, shaking hands and telling stories of the campaign.

Democrats found their strength increased substantially in the Senate as a result of the last elections although their full newly acquired strength will not be felt until the new congress comes into power after March 4. This session is a hold-over of the old congress elected two years ago and the only changes made were through filling

The hearing of testimony was in the plea of abatement to deny facts that were entered in the attachment writ. The land in controversy in the case is located about ten miles southwest of Maryville. It was expected this afternoon that the case would be continued over until tomorrow.

Seth Shipps entered a plea of guilty of violation of the motor vehicle law before the court and was fined $25.

Two Democratic senators, Walsh and Hawes, were sworn to replace Republicans and left the Democrats just six votes short of a majority. The standing is 53 Republicans, 42 Democrats and 1 Farmer-Laborite.

This situation would enable the Democrats to control upon any legislation in which they should receive six votes from the Independent Republican group.

The short session will last for three months until March 4 but there will only be about ten weeks of actual work, due to the necessity for adjourning over the Christmas holidays.

The calendars are jammed with legislation to be taken up, but there is little prospect that much business can be transacted. The government appropriation bills must be passed and these require considerable time, although they attract but little attention from most of the legislators.

Exchanges of congratulations and sympathy appeared to be the order of the day, with politics in general a popular topic of conversation. Those who were successful in the elections last month thundered felicitations of each other while those who suffered defeat found some solace in the touching expressions of regret showered on them by sympathetic colleagues.

Members gathered for the session more than an hour before Longworth called the House to order. A steady stream of legislators began flowing into the chamber as early at 10:30. A half hour before meeting time the chamber was a seething mass of humanity. Everybody seemed to be holding a reception. Members made the rounds of the chamber, cloakroom and adjoining lobby. Everybody was on the go.

Galleries Are Filled.

The galleries were taxed to capacity long before Longworth took up his arduous task of obtaining order for the session to begin. Many members' wives entertained in their private gallery and their brilliant raiment added an unusual touch of color to the occasion. Mrs. "Princess Alice" Roosevelt Longworth, wife of the Speaker and daughter of the late Theodore Roosevelt, had a small party with her in the Speaker's reserved gallery.

The three lady members, Reps. Norton, Dem., N. J., Rogers, Repn., Mass., and Kahn, Repn., Cal., were kept busy acknowledging congratulations on their success in the recent elections. All three of the lady members were re-elected by big majorities. Their forces in the next Congress will be augmented by the presence of Mrs. John W. Langley, Republican, Ky., whose husband, a former member, is now serving a term in Atlanta Penitentiary.

Reps. Hill, Repn., Md., and Upshaw, Dem., Ga., wet and dry leaders respectively, who were eliminated in their State primaries, came in for their share of attention. Party lines were discarded in expressing regret over the passing of these two legislators who so frequently enlivened a dull after noon with an amusing oratorical battle over the prohibition question. Rep. Sosnowski, Repn., Mich., also a victim in the primaries, who was runner-up last session to Longworth as "best-dressed man in the House," received thoughtful expressions from many of his colleagues.

Ovation For Longworth.

Longworth's ascension before noon was a signal for the first outbreak of handclapping, a popular sport in the House. He was given a deafening ovation and experienced considerable trouble in quelling the demonstration to permit the Chaplain to offer prayer.

The Chaplain's prayer concluded, the conversation began again with increasing intensity. The reading clerk proceeded with the journal but few heard his voice. Amid the boisterous conversation and outbreaks of laughter, Longworth brought his gavel down with a bang and announced the journal would stand approved.

The money bills were presented, the presidential committee appointed, minor matters on the Speaker's desk were disposed of and the House voted solemnly for adjournment in memory of deceased colleagues.

Tomorrow, the House is slated to meet in joint session with the Senate to hear President Coolidge deliver his annual message.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Winter Puts Heavy Strains on Every Auto Battery

At zero, Fahrenheit, a fully charged storage battery has only a little more than half its normal power, and a rundown battery will freeze.

And in winter there are fewer long drives to restore the battery's power.

When the car stands, the engine and transmission oil congeals and thus more current is used each time the engine is started.

In winter, nothing less than a full powered battery can be satisfactory. Have your battery inspected today. And if you do need a new one, by all means get your Ford battery now—for safety, comfort and economy.

Costello Fire Loss Estimated at $600

Blaze Which Damages Kitchen Is Discovered Early Sunday Morning at 804 South Buchanan.

A fire which gutted the kitchen of the J. Ed. Costello residence, 804 South Buchanan street early Sunday morning is thought to have started from a match thrown in a fuel box according to Chief of Police Burt A. Rowley today.

Damage to the house was estimated to total from $550 to $600, Chief Rowley said, the fire having destroyed the contents of the kitchen at a loss of about $300 and property damage being placed at $300.

The fire department, called shortly after 1 a. m. Sunday, extinguished the blaze with the use of only one large chemical container. The fire was confined to the kitchen.

Need Three Elements for True Christmas

The Rev. R. A. Mitchell Tells of Christ in Relation to Christmas Spirit in First of Sermon Series.

Taking for his theme, "Unto you this day in the city of David is born a man, who is Christ the Lord," (Luke 2:11) the Rev. R. A. Mitchell of the Methodist Church, South, emphasized in his sermon yesterday that there are three elements to be considered in the true spirit of Christmas. The Reverend Mr. Mitchell, in this sermon "Implications of the Incarnation" started a series of sermons on the "True Spirit of Christmas."

"In the life of man," said Mr. Mitchell, "God surely must have designed to manifest himself, not only in story and wisdom, but as love. And the perfect expression of love is to give oneself entirely.

"The birth of Christ shows us the perfect God and the perfect Man," he continued. "There are those who emphasize his human nature without regard for his diety, and also there are those who are content to exalt Jesus as Lord but not his manhood."

"However," the pastor summed up, "Dr. Kennedy was not far off when he explained that the 'name of God is Jesus.'

"The character of Christ is the revelation of a God of love" the Reverend Mr. Mitchell said, "Another is charity and also his sacrifice, which elements must be considered in the true spirit of Christmas."

Awaits a Chance to Lead Mexican Revolt

Tuscon, Ariz. Dec. 6.—Adolfo de la Huerta, one time provisional president of Mexico, asserted here today he was "marking time" for an opportunity to go into Mexico and assume charge of an uprising in that country.

Although the Mexican consulate announced that Huerta had been arrested on charges of violating American neutrality laws, United States authorities denied that the famous Mexican was being sought, and he was located with his secretary as a companion.

Dr. C. C. Drummond Gives Talk on India

Missionary Tells Of Conditions Of Natives And Of The Home Rule Demands There.

"People get the idea that India is a land of barbarians and beggars and that everyone is ignorant," declared Dr. C. C. Drummond, living link missionary to India from the Christian church here, in his address at the church last night.

"It is true that there are many there who cannot read and write but they have a certain culture and the high caste natives of India are of the same race as Americans and English," he said.

Doctor Drummond told of the nine universities in India and explained that many persons from that country are sent to America and England for education. And, too, there are schools all over India, as well as the mission schools.

"India is demanding home rule," the missionary said, "but that demand is being made largely by politicians and leaders. And there enters into that, also a question of pride. India, with 319,000,000 persons, is not willing for a small country like England to have control, but India is not ready for home rule."

Dr. Drummond then gave some of the reasons for declaring that the country is not ready. First there are 130 castes and 100 languages in India. There are many ignorant persons. India has no navy but has a long coast line, and there are not native officers to take charge of the army.

"India was never better governed than now," the missionary declared. "The government is doing all it can to encourage agriculture and industries."

The question of whether or not the missionaries are accomplishing much is answered in the many reform movements that are under way. One meeting of Hindus, called to consider reforms passed resolutions that girls must be 16 in order to marry, and that woman should be placed on an equality with men. A third was in regard to women's franchise. The meeting was held at Benares, India, and shows some of the good that is being done.

The census, taken every ten years in India, showed in 1921 the Hindus had lost 4 per cent, the Mohammedans had a gain of 3 per cent, while the Christian religion gained 22 per cent.

There also is a temperance movement under way in India. The country has a Woman's Christian Temperance Union. One native state, Bohpal, a Mohammedan province, has prohibition. This state is ruled by a queen who has education. She is a native.

Junior Choir Makes Its First Appearance

The junior choir of the First Christian Church made its initial appearance last night. It is composed of girls and boys of the church. The group gave an anthem which was well received, the Rev. R. E. Musgrave said today. A duet by Miss Doris Snodgrass and Miss Ruby Lucille Watt was a special number on the program. Mrs. Ruth Martin is the leader of the choir and Mrs. June Blagg is the pianist.

Mrs. T. J. Williams, president of the woman's council of the church was in charge of the service last night. Miss Laura Hawkins gave a prayer and Miss Fannie Hope read the scripture.

WITH REGRET?

A year ago 146 Maryville people joined the Christmas Savings Club at this "Bank of Personal Service." This Christmas they will be going into the holidays with a light heart and a full purse. They will be in a position to buy gifts and meet other expenses without inconvenience, and in addition will have money left over.

These 146 Maryville people made these liberal Christmas Savings by making small deposits weekly, in accordance with our table of savings. The amounts were so small that not a single person noticed the drain on his purse. This month they are receiving amounts ranging from $12.75 to $510.

There must be more Maryville people who would like to join this happy family of Christmas Savers

To them we suggest that they see us about one or more of the following classes:

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

JUDITH MARTIN, young college teacher, is torn between her friendship for ERIC WATERS, radical senior, and DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, who disapproves of her student friends.

Judith enrages DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN, but makes friends with his wife, whose unhappy story and whose secret love affair she has learned.

Shea tries to blackmail Mrs. Brown, and also threatens to tell the dean that Eric and Judith dined at a roadhouse the night that it was raided. Judith appeals to Eric for help.

On Christmas Eve, Judith staying alone in Myra's sorority house for the holidays, is terrified when Shea tries to force an entrance. She shoots in the air, and he goes away.

Returning to the sorority house with Dr. Dorn, Judith finds Eric, who has unexpectedly come back from his home town. He has a large bruise over his left eye.

When Judith is talking with EVE GERHART, a widoy, at Eric's fraternity house, one evening after the January term opens, Myra sends word that there is a letter for Judith from Dean Brown, at the boarding house.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI.

"For me?" asked Judith, frowning.

"Yes," said Eric. "Myra thought you might want to come home and read it."

Eve was smiling at Judith. "Well," she said, "excuse me. I'm going after a roasted chestnut."

Judith turned to Eric. "What does that mean?"

Judith tossed her head. "All right."

Eric read it over her shoulder. When they had finished he read it again. "When did you last see Shea, Judith."

Judith started. "Why do you ask that?"

"Because I believe the dean means to question you about him. You remember that Shea once called you by your first name in front of Dean and Mrs. Brown."

Judith nodded.

"Well," said Eric, "they can't find Shea. I was called in myself yesterday and questioned as to his whereabouts. Of course they won't find him. Shea has too many pipelines around town, not to know that they're after him. He'll just lie low in Middleburg till this blows over."

Frim his vantage point, behind the massive desk in his sanctum, Dean Brown fixed Judith with a solemn gaze as she entered. His pudgy hands were outspread on the top of the desk, like starfishes caught to far inland when the tide went out.

"Please be seated, Miss Martin."

When she had taken the chair of inquisition, facing him, he took off his glasses and laid them on the desk. "I hope, Miss Martin, that any feeling of hostility which you may have held toward me has by this time disappeared. I trust you realize that we are both in duty bound to work only for the good of the university and the immortal souls intrusted to our guidance."

Judith smiled, and the dean's brows drew together.

"I was only thinking that I was employed to teach people Latin, not about right and wrong," she said.

The dean ignored the implication. "In the great reform which we are inaugurating in the university, our first step is to stamp out the liquor evil. That is where I hope you can help us."

Judith stood up. "You are insulting," she said. "I have no connection with liquor. I neither buy, sell nor drink it." She made a movement toward the door, but the dean raised his hand.

"Pray do not be hasty," he said. "I only meant that you might be able to give us some information about this man Shea, who is the source of the liquor drunk here. We have a warrant for his arrest."

Judith turned toward him. "I do not know anything about Shea, Dean Brown. I met him casually once at a picnic, but there the acquaintance ended."

"Hm-m," mused the dean, "he began to call you Judith rather early, didn't he?"

"He called me that deliberately, to embarass me," flashed Judith. "If this is all, I think I will go."

"Just a moment," said the dean. "I am convinced that young Waters knows where Shea is hiding. You—er—have some influence with Waters. I shall expect you to get information of Shea's whereabouts for us before night. Waters' standing as a student, and yours as a teacher, depend on it."

Judith looked at him in extreme disgust and walked out of the room.

Dr. Dorn was standing in the outer room. At sight of Judith's flushed face and angry eyes, he followed her out into the corridor.

"Is anything wrong, Miss Martin?"

"Yes," snapped Judith. "Everything's wrong. I just prevented myself from calling your excellent dean a cad to his face. And now I'm kicking myself for preventing me."

Dr. Dorn's eyes widened. "What is the matter?"

Judith turned on him. "Dean Brown just asked me, under penalty of dismissal, to act as stool pigeon in his wretched little vice campaign. And I turned and walked out of his office."

Dr. Dorn looked distressed. "Judith, please try to calm yourself. Someone might hear you." He looked around apprehensively.

Judith struck her hands together smartly. "What if someone does?" she cried. "Am I to live under a pall all my life, because I chose this sorry job of teaching?"

The professor looked baffled. Judith turned on him. "You don't believe that I know where Shea is, do you?"

He shook his head, as if horrorstruck. "Of course not. But the dean will never believe you are innocent so long as you cleave to that young bolshevik, Waters."

The color deepened in Judith's face. "It's no one's business whom I cleave to, so long as I conduct myself as I should. I KNOW Eric hasn't the information they want. I also know that he has never bootlegged. And I CAN'T desert him now. Why, he believes in me!"

Dr. Dorn took her hand timidly. "There are others who believe in you, too, Judith, and who suffer when you imperil that belief."

Judith's eyes looked into his and fled from them. She pulled her hand away. "If you'd only let me alone, all of you!" she exclaimed. "There's nothing you can do. We don't think in the same language, Dr. Dorn."

He drew back, sadly. "I'm afraid we don't. But I'm sorry. I wish I could help you."

Judith's eyes were filling with tears. Turning abruptly, she walked away from him down the hall.

On the porch of the building Myra and Will Wetherel were waiting for her.

Wetherel was wearing the memorable green riding suit. "You see us just returning from play rehearsal, Jude," he apologized. "I always wear these breeches for the 'Blood and Sand' rehearsals. They make it so much easier to wallow around on the floor in the scene where I make the passionate love to Dona Sol."

Judith laughed in spite of her troubles. "Don't let them make you self-conscious about your breeches, Will. Thank God, there are a few people left who live as their own judgment dictates. Don't ever apologize for anything again. Let's be done with apologies!"

Myra was looking at her curiously. "You sound a little bit insane, Judith, like Hamlet in the 'Get thee to a nunnery' speech. What's happened to you?"

Judith only smiled. "I'm just learning what schoolteaching means, that's all. And I think a schoolteacher might envy a galley slave."

Wetherel looked at her. "You and Eric are both a little crazy these days," he said. "He's been nutty ever since he came back on Christmas day, with that ugly bruise on his head."

Myra's mouth opened. "Christmas day? Did Eric come back then?"

"Sure thing," replied Wetherel.

Myra turned to Judith. "You didn't tell me, and he didn't tell me," she was silent a moment. "And you used my sorority house to entertain him in! Traitor!"

Judith was very white. "Listen, Myra," she said, "you'd better walk away quite fast now. I've had about all I can stand today. And I'm just a little afraid I might slap you."

Wetherel shot a frightened glance at Judith's desperate face, and, seizing Myra by the arm, walked her rapidly away.

Judith went down into the sunken garden by the sundial and sat on a stone bench. In fifteen minutes, the two o'clock bell rang, and she picked up the Horace textbook that lay beside her and started wearily for the building again.

Most of the class had assembled when she entered the room, but she saw that Eric had not come in.

A little group by the window turned and eyed her, then put heads together again. She could hear a whispered word here and there.

Soon, she began to listen with desperate eagerness. "All smashed up—dead some time," she heard the spectacled boy say to the shuddering Misses Reasey. "Car full o' empty jugs and bottles—letters."

Shea is dead, and Judith can't help wondering about Eric's bruised eye, and his talking of making Shea shut up.

Missouri to Show College Pictures

There will be no motion picture shows at the State Teachers College during the winter quarter, which has just opened. Instead, the College will show its picture at the Missouri Theater, it was announced this morning.

"The policy for pictures will be to show the best as soon as we are able to get them," Uel W. Lamkin, College president, said today. "The first picture shown will be on Thursday and Friday nights, this week, when Mary Pickford's "Sparrows" will be brought to Maryville. This picture will not open in Kansas City until the last of the month."

The regular Missouri scale of prices will be maintained and College minor coupons will admit to the pictures.

BRECKENRIDGE WINS TOURNEY

GALT IN THIRD PLACE

The Tournament All-Stars.

S. Brooks, Breckenridge, forward and captain.
Powers, Galt, forward.
McKee, Pickering, center.
Max, Rosendale, guard.
Misner, Gilman City, guard.

A flashy little team of blue and white suited basketball players romped through the Northwest Missouri High School Basketball Tournament at the State Teachers College Gymnasium last Friday and Saturday and won the championship of the district. The final game was played Saturday night, when the Breckenridge team won over Pickering, Nodaway County champion. The score was 14 to 10.

In the consolation finals, played as a curtain raiser to the main event, Galt won from Gilman City, 35 to 20. The teams in this game were those defeated by Breckenridge and Pickering in the semi-finals Saturday afternoon. In those games Pickering won from Gilman City, 22 to 12, and Breckenridge defeated Galt, 22 to 17.

The final game Saturday night was in truth a championship affair, and there can be no doubt that the best "team" won. The Blue and White triumphed because team work was its outstanding characteristic. Pickering again depended almost wholly on one man, "Curly" McKee, and on this hinged the defeat. For "Curly" McKee either was miles off or the Breckenridge players had him covered mighty closely. For he scored not a single field goal in the game.

Star Banished On Fouls.

Early in the fourth quarter, McKee was banished from the game on personal fouls. After he had left the court his mates displayed a better brand of basketball than when he was playing, for they had to play as a team.

Breckenridge carried the fight all through the game. The scoring was less in the first half than in the second, but the ball was played just as viciously all the time. At the end of the initial semester the score stood 5 to 4 in favor of Breckenridge.

One outstanding thing about the Breckenridge victory was that the scoring in the game was divided. Four players shared honors in goal tossing, and there was no concentrated effort to "feed" one man.

The Galt victory was a well-earned one. It was just a case of the best team winning. The Galt boys had the edge in height and ability to connect with the basket, and therein lay the secret of the victory. This was an exceptionally clean game, there being but six fouls called in the entire tilt.

Galt Forward Is Ill.

Powers, flashy little Galt forward, did not start the game. He was suffering from indigestion throughout the tournament, and his coach did not let him play until about the middle of the game. At that he was responsible for eight of his team's points.

The tournament this year showed a number of outstanding players. Many of them were on teams which did not go far in the tournament, however.

One player who cannot go without recognition is Max, the Rosendale captain and guard. He led his team in a masterful fashion and was said by many to be the best guard in the tournament.

McKee of Pickering and S. Brooks of Breckenridge were outstanding as scoring and floor players, as was Powers of Galt. There were a number of others who were almost equally as good.
